GERMAN VESSEL RACES TO HAVEN: PUT UNDER GUARD

Captain Says British Cruiser Fired Upon Him; U. S. To Probe Status of His Crew.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Dec. 19 .- (AP) -The German freighter Arauca, hazarding a voyage from Mexico to her homeland, sped into port here today after a British cruiser attempted to cut off her escape and take her as a prize of war, Captain Frederick Stengler of the Nazi craft asserted a warning shell from the fighting ship whistled across the bow of his ship after he passed inside the threemile limit.

(The United Press said firing of the shot by the Orion could be seen and heard by residents of the beach here. They were unable to determine at once the nationality of the vessels involved, but soon the Arauca, her name painted over but visible at close range, moved to the sea buoy. Her Nazi pennant was flying and a flag signalling for a pilot was broken out.)

Two officers of the coastwise passenger liner Shawnee said the merchant vessel missed capture by 15 minutes, and put the Shawnee between itself and the cruis-

The Shawnee officers, who asked that their names be withheld, heard no shot, but another eyewitness, who also asked to remain anonymous, reported he heard what seemed to be a blank The 4,354-ton, 434-foot Diesel-electric German ship head ed toward shore at such speed it would have grounded on Hillsborough reef had engines not been put hard in reverse, this informant said.

Captain Stengler reported he was riding the Gulf stream northward when the British warcraft hove into view and signaled for him to turn his ship toward the open sea. Instead, he said, he swung his prow westward and sped for neutral waters. The warship began the brief chase, and one warning shot was fired.

CREW ABANDONS BLAZING VESSLL 400 MILES AT SEA

Tuscaloosa Radios She Has All But Two of German Crew Aboard and Heads for Home.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 .-(AP) - The huge German luxury liner Columbus, reported to have been scuttled to thwart a British destroyer which was hot on her wake, was aflame and sinking tonight in the Atlantic while an American naval cruiser performed a dramatic rescue of all of her crew of 579 except two firemen.

The 32,381-ton liner, third largest in the Nazi merchant marine, had slipped out of Vera Cruz, Mexico, last Thursday in a desperate attempt to elude the British fleet and possibly reach Europe-but her gamble failed.

First word of her grim end came from the United States cruiser Tuscaloosa, which flashed that she was being scuttled about 400 miles east of Cape Henry, Va. A British destroyer was in the vicinity, the Tuscaloosa reported, but there were no signs that any hostilities had occurred.

Everyone Saved.

While dusk gathered over the ocean the Tuscaloosa hastened to pick up the German seamen who, it was indicated by word received here, had pulled away from their craft in small boats. The Tuscaloosa, commanded by Capt. H. A. Badt, notified the navy department tonight that two members of the crew of the German liner Columbus were missing when the crew was mustered. He gave their names as Carl G. Lapaat and Helmuth Mietz, firemen. The Tuscaloosa previously had reported the rescue of 579 survivors as representing the entire crew. Two women, presumed to be stewardesses, were among the her doom. Behind her also 22 empty lifeboats were adfrit near the scene. The navy hydrographic office, on hearing this, broadcast a warning that the boats, as well as the Columbus, were menaces to navigation. The big liner, however, was opened to make her founder as fast as possible.

The Columbus had been at Vera Cruz from the beginning of the war until last week. She had put into that port hastily when the outbreak of hostilities caught her on a Caribbean cruise. When she

The Huey Long political organiportant test of strength in the state on five major issues. The vote on three of these issueswhether the people of the state think elections in Louisiana are honest, whether they believe the state courts are honest, and

Both Good and Bad Only a small proportion of those interviewed—fewer than one in ten, or 9 per cent, said they had no opinion.

The Institute's report of three days ago showed that the great majority of Louisiana voters—60 per cent of those polled — think elections in recent years have not been honestly conducted in their state. A majority also said they think the present Long regime will not "clean house." Many likewise felt that the state courts are not those who think Huey Long was a bad influence are "his methods were dishonest," "he built a bad political machine," "he was a dictator," "he was a political rack-eteer" and "he didn't keep his promises."

The largest proportion of voters believing Huey Long was a good influence was found in the lower income levels. More than 70 per cent in this group said he was a good influence, as compared to only 36 per cent in the upper inome group.

A question of importance as the Louisiana election approaches is whether the popularity and pres-tige of the dead Huey Long will be transferred to his brother and successor. Can Earl Long keep the voters in line as successfully as the Kingfish did?

To test Earl Long's popularity

as of this time, the Institute questioned voters throughout the state on their choice among the five candidates who are running in the primary to be held January 16— Earl Long, Attorney Sam Jones, of Lake Charles; Jimmy Noe, former henchman of the Kingfish but now an opponent of the Long regime, and James H. Aid For Finns Planned By Allies

PARIS, Dec. 19 .- (UP) -- The Allied supreme war council meeting in Paris today pushed plans send material aid to Finland after receiving word from Helsinki that the Finns have strong hopes of standing off the Russian army all winter if they receive war supplies at once.

The supreme war council met under the leadership of French Premier Edouard Daladier and British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. The latter returned to London tonight after a tour of the western front.

Immediate aid to the Finns under a plan drafted by the Helsinki government was understood to have been the dominating ques-tion at the meeting. No final decisions appeared to have been

12 Nazi Planes Held Destroyed

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(P)—British sources said one British bomber shot down five German fighters in yesterday's battle over Helgoland bight and that it was not believed more than 12 German Messer-schmitt planes had been destroyed. German fighters made about 40 separate attacks on the British bombers, the British said.

This British account declared the German claim that 36 British aircraft had been brought down in the fighting was made "more ri-diculous" by the fact the total number of British aircraft engaged was far under that figure.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 19.—(AP) The internment of 1,039 Nazi officers and men from the sunken German raider, Admiral Graf Spee, some of whom will be sent to Argentina's land-locked provinces far from the sea, was or-dered tonight by President Robert M. Ortiz.

TO PRACTICE WAR AT FORT BENNING

Streamlined Divisions To Join Mass Tactics Along Lines of Maneuvers Held by Europeans.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)— Secretary Woodring announced today that all the army's modern tanks except those of two companies will be massed for training by January 10 at Fort Benning. Georga.

Approximately 260 tanks will be included, officials estimated, the largest such concentration in the army's peace time history.

After the manner of European armies, the tanks will be employed in mass tactics. Their crews will be given about four months' training before the tank units engage in war games with streamlined divisions in the spring.

Ten units from scattered posts will be moved by rail or motor to Fort Benning. Those not included in the concentration are the third tank company, Fort Lewis, Wash., and the eleventh company at Schofield barracks, Hawaii

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 20, 1939.

Welcome, Governor Cox

Fifty-six years ago The Constitution welcomed, through its columns, the first issue of The Atlanta Journal. In the years that have followed the two papers have grown side by

Under the direction of the James R. Grays, senior and junior, and under the leadership of Major John S. Cohen, The Journal has contributed much to the upbuilding of Atlanta, of Georgia and of the South. It has always cooperated fully in those things which have seemed to be for the advancement of this section of the country.

The Constitution and The Journal have, many times, disagreed on political issues. Often the editorial battles between the two have been . sharp and hard-fought, with no quarter asked. Yet, no matter how sharply divided in political opinion, there never has been a break in the pleasant personal friendships between the men who have directed the two papers.

Today The Journal has new owners. Former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, by purchasing The Journal, has demonstrated his faith in the future of Atlanta and of Georgia. It is reason for self-congratulation by all Georgians that a man of his business acumen has been so impressed by the opportunities within this state. Georgia welcomes him and his associates, as Georgia always welcomes new interests, new enthusiasms and new agencies for the

To the newly announced executives of The Journal, The Constitution extends congratulations and heartiest good wishes. Many of these executives, though they continue as business competitors, continue, too, as personal friends.

James M. Cox began life on an Ohio farm and, at 16, was a country school teacher. He was a newspaper publisher by the time he was 28 and has illustrated, in his business career, the best type of American success story. Today the chain of newspapers he heads includes, in addition to The Journal, the Dayton (Ohio) News, the Springfield (Ohio) News and the Miami (Fla.) News.

His political career is too well known to need extensive recapitulation here. He has been thrice governor of Ohio, twice representative in Congress and was the Democratic presidential nominee in 1920.

The Journal, throughout its career, has made for itself a history replete with such public service as a good newspaper is peculiarly fitted to render. Under its new ownership there is every indication that it will continue to be a powerful factor for good.

The Constitution welcomes Governor Cox and his associates into the field of Georgia

Bureaucrats and Slackers

The German people are long-suffering and willing to put up with almost any kind of bullying if they believe it is a patriotic duty and best suited to-the future of the country. Except for this belief, who can doubt that if they, as a people, wanted to rid the country of Hitlerism, they could do it over-night? Without doubt they are among the most ill-used people in the world. They take it and have taken it for years. They seem to thrive best under the boot of the uniformed autocrat.

Strangely, however, those very long-suffering ones who have been bullied and kicked about for years by bureaucrat and army tyrant themselves assume the role of bully or tyrant at the moment of being put into a position of authority. None other than Field Marshal Herman Goering has taken official cognizance of this Germanic phenomenon.

"A number of officials, both paid and voluntary, are conducting themselves in a manner entirely incompatible with their obligations." complains Fuehrer number two. "Those guilty of infractions will be subjected to ruthless punishment. Every official must realize that he is there for the people and not the people there for him, and during the present difficult period bureaucratic narrow-mindedness, smallness of vision, presumptuousness and autocratic manners must cease.

"On the other hand," and this is for the benefit of the poor people who were to be protected in the preceding paragraph, "countless complaints being made daily are mostly due to bad will and unpatriotic grumbling. In such cases, the grumbler will be treated as a slacker and dealt with accordingly."

Nothing, it seems, could be better calculated to eliminate the complaints, if not the bureaucratic bullying, than to be "dealt with accordingly," which, in German, means thrown into a concentration camp in charge of more bullies in uniform.

Joel Hurt Memorial Park

No happier choice of a name for Atlanta's new downtown park, at Edgewood avenue and Gilmer street, could have been made than that unanimously approved by city council, the Joel Hurt Memorial Park.

The late Joel Hurt was one of the outstanding pioneers in the development of modern Atlanta. He was a man of such vision and foresight he frequently undertook projects which others, less confident, branded as overly optimistic. Yet, in practically every instance, his faith in Atlanta was justified.

Particularly did he impress himself upon that section of the city where the new park is located. It was he who opened Edgewood avenue to Inman Park. It was he who erected the first skyscraper-constructed building in the south, the present Trust Company of Georgia building at the corner of Edgewood avenue and Pryor street, first known as the Equitable building. When Mr. Hurt was planning his building he was told it would be ten years, at least, before its office space was filled. He saw it fully occupied in less than a year after its

Mr. Hurt consolidated the street railway systems of old Atlanta and gave this city its first electrified street cars. He built the Hurt building, one of Atlanta's greatest office buildings, and it was he who developed the residential district known as Druid Hills.

It is but fitting his name should be given to the new park facing the auditorium, across the street from the building which likewise

The Joel Hurt Memorial Park will be one of the outstanding features of the downtown Atlanta of the future. The gift of $15,000 from the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation for a central fountain, electrically operated and with concealed lighting of different hues, promises a picturesque focal point for the development of the park. City council will be asked to include $40,000 in the 1940 budget for the landscaping of the park, the laying of walkways and other details of plans which promise to make it a veritable beauty spot.

Monarchy in Spain?

Persistent and increasing rumors coming from Spain are to the effect that Franco is contemplating, with considerable favor, a plan to restore a limited monarchy in that strifetorn country, with Prince Juan, son of the exiled King, at the head. This would be done, it is stated, through the formation of a provisional conservative assembly which would proclaim Prince Juan as King, with the ultimate object of creating a stable national government through general elections.

In short, it is evidently Franco's idea to create a nominal constitutional monarchy modeled on the British plan.

If these rumors are correct, it is evidence of a wise understanding by Franco of the national characteristics of the people out of whom he is trying to recreate a unified and conscious nationalism. Disrupted by the hatreds born of years of civil warfare it can be no easy task to smooth away these scars and to mould the conflicting elements of Spain

Under such conditions, a purely constitutional monarchy, as suggested, would provide the rallying point around which all Spaniards could agree, while the combination of general elections for formation of a national government, with free, unhindered ballots, would create the atmosphere of democratic freedom in a form easily assimilable by the people.

Pure democracy is something so idealistic that few people in the world have yet progressed to the point where they can properly establish and maintain it. Even in the United States it remains today an ideal not yet realized, save in partial degree. How much more difficult, then, would it be to impose full democratic rule upon the people of Spain, but recently emerged from centuries of repression under absolute monarchy and oppression by the government, by the wealthy landowners and, even, by some branches of the church?

In marked contrast to conditions in the dizzy dry era, a new process ages liquor 10 years overnight, instead of the drinker.

UNEDUCATED AMERICA (From the Charlotte Observer.)

The American Youth Commission's statement that the American people cannot be called well educated, despite the development of education in the last hundred years, is hard to refute.

It says that of 75,000,000 adults in the United States, about 36,000,000 did not finish elementary school; that probably half that number failed to finish the fourth grade, and that at least 3,000,000 are entirely illiterate. Although improvements since 1900 have ught youth more schooling than their elders and better schooling in prosperous areas, the com-mission comments that "half of the young people who have left school have not finished the ninth grade and many of them have had far less than nine years of schooling.'

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TRADE PACTS VITAL ISSUE WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 .- The biggest and the most disheartening fight of the coming congressional session will rage around renewal of the trade agreements act. The authority to make trade agreements expires next year. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, supported by the President, will seek a three-year extension. Three-quarters of the lobbies in Washington are hovering by, like vultures circling a sick animal, hungrily expecting to pick a corpse before nightfall.

Hull is determined to make such a fight for his law as Washington has seldom seen. There are rumors, emanating from New Deal quarters, that the President's support will be only pro forma. But it may be taken for granted that these rumors are unfounded. The President cannot desert Hull at this time, whatever cheap political strategy may suggest. The issue is fundamental.

The trade agreement law is the United States' most notable recent contribution to the economic appeasement of a sorely troubled world. A congressional vote of "no confidence" in the trade agreement policy could have only one meaning—that this country, in blind, idiotic self-confidence, has lost interest in world economic appeasement. A World War is on. We have suffered bitterly for two decades from the consequences of a bad peace. And if we, the only peaceful nation powerful enough to speak with authority now choose the course of ignorant selfishness, the next peace will be ten times worse than the last.

"Nullify the trade agreements, and we lose our standing at the conference table," one unquestioned authority has remarked. "Then the next world settlement will make Versailles look like a vege-"Then tarian luncheon of the ethical culture society."

BUTTER, HARPS, PEANUTS Existing trade agreements will threatened by failure to renew the trade agreement law. Even the controversial Argentine agreement, which infuriates the cattle lobby by putting canned beef on the free list, will probably be concluded in time to get under the wire. The balance of trade will not be affected. As exports have overbalanced imports in the last two months at a rate to make a fayorable annual balance of $1,500,000,000, the balance of trade can hardly be a cause for concern. But the trade agreements can be made the means of a cheap victory for the lobbyists, and, as it now seems, for the Republicans, who are ready to take the lobbyists as Allies. The benefits derived from the trade agreements are of a broad nature, and difficult to demonstrate. It is easy for the lobbyists, and for their new Republican friends, to show special interest groups that more cattle, or butter, or jewsharps, or peanuts, or some other locally produced article, have been imported since such and such a trade agreement was signed. Although this competition in their markets has probably cost less than the fat lobbyists' salaries, the special interest groups are aroused. The dairy lobby, strongest and greediest in the capital, is on the war path. The beef cattle people are screaming with rage. Of all the farm groups, only the Farm Bureau Federation is holding back, and, if Ed O'Neal, the Farm Bureau's national leader, refuses to join the fight, the local farm bureaus will enter in. Manufacturers, long accustomed to tariff log-rolling, are joining the farmers. And even certain labor groups are said to be ready to join the grand alliance.

FAKING AND OPPORTUNISM The behavior of the lobbyists was to be expected. lobbyists get their living by deceiving their customers. The appearance not the substance, of service is their inexpensive stock in trade. The behavior of the Republicans has less excuse, however, Economically literate business men, who form the backbone of the Republican party, are likely to make the Republican leadership

Meanwhile, there are definite indications that the Republican commotion against the trade agreements originates in the Republican national committee, where it is probably considered a good way of killing off Secretary Hull as a presidential candidate. both house and senate, the fight is expected to be partisan, with the Republicans leading the attack and using whatever Democratic aid the lobbyists can drive into the corral.

Instead of a frontal assault, three ways of hamstringing the trade agreement program are proposed: (1) To require senate confirmation of all future agreements: (2) To make it impossible to lower the duties on manufactured goods; and (3) To make all trade agreements strictly bilateral, or mere barter deals on the German pattern. If any of these amendments succeeds, the United States will virtually have ceased to have a foreign policy.

Sturdy NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Quite a lot of books have been Sturdy written in the last few years on the subject of thinking, and as one of the leading thinkers of the period I might offer some helpful suggestions. I am what you might call a Sears-Roebuck thinker, which is to say that I think in enormous volume on an amazing variety of subjects. Mine are not de luxe thoughts, but they are good and sturdy and give satisfactory results of the whole, being marketed through a rather extensive list of branch outlets around the country. The fastidious ntellectual trade gives me very little play; also some of the arisocracy occasionally appear with an idea or opinion of mine picked up just as a lark while out slumming, or with something of mine which has been run up in expensive wordage, retaining, however, the original lines. I suppose I could sue them for infringement but it would be hardly worth while, as by that time I am thinking of something else.

Some of the stylish, custom thinkers who work over each thought with extreme care, often spending weeks on a single lovely little job of ratiocination, think that I think trash, but I don't are to go that far. I admit don't ratiocinate. It takes too much time, and I have to turn it out six days a week, including some when the raw materials aren't very good and the mechanism is creaky.

Moreover, the class thinkers reuse to handle many of the subjects which must be carried in a popular-priced variety line. They are like those old-fashioned apothecaries who give you a look you ask for a percolator. I carry percolators, alarm clocks, saltpeanuts and a full line of stationery, office supplies and bathing caps, and you can get chow mein or the blue plate at the soda fountain.

People Want I am not Sears-Roebuck, any variety. more, you will notice, but a chain of drug-department stores. It may sound to you as though I have got my ideas confused, hopscotching around that way, from Sears-Roebuck to the drug-department store line, but that isn't it. A thinker in my line of business can't spend all his time on one thought. People want variety. Next paragraph I might be the five-and-ten. I never know from one paragraph to another.

Sometimes, just to keep up on things, I read some of the swanky thinkers. You have to do that ocasionally. I press my nose against the pane to see what Walter Lippmann is thinking, or Jimmy Sheean, or Old Man Villard, who is a progressive but keeps the same old carved walnut intellectual fixtures and high ceilings, generation after generation, and would be insulted if you asked him to think up something about ettes amounted to sufficient to a big heavyweight fight just to

But I suppose old man Wool-worth envied Tiffany, and I admit that I have a somewhat simi-lar feeling about some of the exclusive thinkers, such as this Reinhold Niebuhr, who last week thought up something special for the nation about the Russian invasion of Finland.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

A LETTER FROM SWEDEN Yesterday there came a letter from Sweden and a friend, a woman of very mature years, who wrote: "Everyone here says, 'Oh, that the United States will come to our rescue!' We are terrified now because of Russia's aggression against Finland. It will be impossible for us to stay out if it continues. And how we Swedes hate the war and how we wish to remain in peace.

 They do, of course.
 Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Norway were almost the only places on earth where many of the social and economic problems seemed, at least in part, to be solved.

They entertained no ideas of harming anyone; they were at least moderately prosperous; they had a free press, except in Denmark, where fear of the German Reich imposed a voluntary type dinavian countries appear doomed.

It is no wonder resentment sweeps the world. There was no such resentment about Poland as exists over the case of Finland. Poland was not a happy country. Its people were not well nor kindly governed.

If Russia attacks Roumania to get back Bessarabia, there will be less resentment. Rumania was created in her present size out of the treaty of Versailles. Rumania's neighbors hate her. Her internal government has not been a happy one. Rumania is a problem. Finland is a cause.

A VERY REAL CRIME What Russia is doing to Finland is a very real crime. The world will re-member it long after the world has forgotten what happened to Poland. Rumania and Poland have been destroyed and re-created before. It is not pleasant. One does not condone it. Yet it is all a part of a long history of intrigue and anarchy. Their neighbors, diminished by the World War, hated those nations which were enriched by it. Sweden is in danger. Her iron reserves are in the north. They are in the process of production. Russia, never mechanically minded from all reports, would like those mines and the men who do, and some naval bases. Finland and much of Sweden would be destroyed. The crime of Finland will remain in the memory of the world for a long time. It will remain a cause. It is but one more reason to fight Stalin and Communism.

In the taking of the iron mines they would take, of course,

Communism, we know, has disappeared in Russia. There remains Stalin-ism, which is worse. We know that our form of government, with all its faults, is that which gives to the most people a satisfactory sort of existence. The fact that it has failed some 8,000,000 out of almost 150,000,000, presents a problem which should inspire us, not anger or disturb us.

OUR OWN SACRIFICE It ought to be pretty obvious now, even to those who were forming leagues to keep their sons out of war, that we are not going to war. All the early hysteria about keeping us out, when no one had suggested we get in, was ridiculous. It was so pointed out at the time. From the very beginning the President and congress were against

In making that wise decision, to remain out, we have sacrificed something. That is our international influence. We cannot expect Russia or Germany to pay much attention to any request from a nation which is not going to fight.

They are fighting. All they have is at stake. So, they will pay small heed to a nation which is going to remain out of the war.

That is why it is important, I think, we should not be speaking out too much in European affairs. Certainly we should not break off relations with Russia as has been suggested, largely by the Republican candidates and the fussy Mr. Herbert Hoover, to whom few

If we break off relations we have lost what small voice and influence we have. The breaking off of relations indicates some other action is to follow. Russia knows we are not going to get into the war. So does Germany. No other action would follow.

It is unfortunately true the Finns believe we will help them.

We can't. It is reported they believe if they held out until we can't. It is reported they believe if they held out until spring, the United States will help them with planes and with pilots. We

We have chosen peace-wisely so-and in so doing we sacrificed Our job is to produce and sell machines, planes, shells, food and other equipment of war, to the Allies. It is important to us they win.

The Roof Always Leaks If We Never Think About It Till a Rain Begins

By ROBERT QUILLEN. Our text for today consists of two truisms: One man can't be trusted to do the thinking for one hundred and thirty million people, and a 10-year-old model of anything is obsolete in this era of rapid progress. The advantage of democracy, pointed out by Jefferson and many another, is that the judgment of many people is more trust-worthy than the judgment of one. Yet even in a free land there must be a boss, and in practice the welfare of all is frequently at the mercy of one little man's opinions.

England did not arm; Hitler was encouraged to run wild; and many an English boy must die because one old man's wits were dull. America we are equally at the mercy of the man on the job. His opinions, if wrong, can imperil the whole nation. Harding and Coolidge and Hoover thought we had navy enough, and therefore we got no more. Roosevelt, long an advocate of sea power, thought we needed a better navy and we proceeded to get it. It isn't as good as it might be; for somewhere in the group of 110 Annapolis men who rule the navy, there is one whose opinion prevailed over the warnings of civilian engineers and gave us destroyers that must be weighted with tons of burdensome lead to keep them from turning over. Why was our navy so weak when Roosevelt came in if it had been strong when the World War ended? Because we scrapped

We get excited and stir up congress; a lot of planes, ships or coast defenses are built: then we forget the matter; and when trouble comes, our defenses are old and obsolete and useless. Defenses must be made a going business, automatically perpetuated, that works without watching, regardless of public interest. How could England manage her vast empire if there were no

Charges "Browbeating"

Miller charged that "it is gen-eral knowledge all over Georgia that the Governor, since, assuming control over the highway department, has used it in attempting to browbeat and intimidate the general assembly of this state in an effort to further his selfish political schemes by the promise of roads, manipulation of contracts, firing of employes related to members of the assembly who would not agree with him. various and sundry other acts that were absolutely contrary to commen decency and orderly opera-tion of the highway department." "Since the executive order manipulation of the Highway Department has been in force there are many things that have been done that in the judgment of the Highway Board never should have been done, and they do not reflect a conscientious, faithful admin istration of the tax funds of this state.

It reminds me of an old mansion in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia, where, one summer as our little family casually drove through that enchanting countryside, we came upon an old corroded sun dial, on which we could dimly read these words, "It Is Always Later Than You Think."

I have never forgotten that sun dial with its gripping message, warning every passerby to buy up the golden moments of the fleeting days of the earthly pilgrimage. At best, life is all too brief. Every hour is fraught with endless good.

Perhaps Jesus was intending to emphasize this solemnizing fact when He said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work," and again, "I must work the works of | Selah. Him that sent Me while it is day;

WIFE-SLAYER TELLS OF OTHER KILLINGS

Admission Reportedly Made To Get Matter 'Off My Mind.'

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Charles Garner, 19year-old convicted wife-slayer, admitted three other Missouri and Nebraska killings today "to get the matter off my mind."

Garner is serving a life sentence in the Misssouri penitentiary for drowning his young wife last July 2. He made a written statement to Warden Tom Scott in the presence of newspapermen, climaxing a day of questioning which began when Garner first told his story

Scott said Garner admitted shooting to death Alvin Collingham, brother of the girl Garner married, and poisoning Clem Hall, both in York, Neb., last June. Col-lingham's death had been called uicide and Hall's attributed to a neart attack, Garner said.

In addition, the convict said he pushed an unidentified youth from a freight train near Kansas City in 1936. The boy fell under the wheels of the car and was killed,

HOUSE WITH PUPS

Nothing But Best Will Do for Children of Just a Mutt.

Jill has very good taste. And nothing but the best will do for her children. Jill's pedigree is not so imposing. In fact, she might be described as a 'mutt." But when the time came for her to bring four pretty puppies into the world, she walked into the living room of a fine Norman house, under construction on Howell Mill road, and there she stayed until her family was born. In fact, she is still there, although the pups are now three weeks old. She is the pet of the neighborhood. Children who live in the vicinity bring her food every day and all but one of the puppies have already been adopted by the youngsters,

As for Jill, herself, she is per-fectly happy. She is petted and fed and allowed to sleep in the kitchen of the new house which is now occupied by its owners, Dr. and Mrs. Martin T. Myers.

No one has yet spoken for the mother dog, but she probably will become an addition to the canine population of the neighborhood, because the children who live there just couldn't bear to see the happy family broken up. The Myers live at 2938 Howell

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Gable Present Earrings to Mayor's Daughter

By Sally Forth.

DESPITE her calm and unruffled appearance at the "Gone With the Wind" ball last Thursday evening, Mildred Hartsfield, lovely brunet daughter of the Mayor, suffered a catastrophe when one of the beautiful earrings which she wore to accent her gown was lost.

Mildred, you know, occupied the "seat of honor" at the ball, having been seated next to Carole and Clark Gable. Her lovely earrings, fashioned of yellow gold and set with sapphires, attracted admiration throughout the evening, and as they ranked among the belle's most prized possessions, she was muchly upset to discover one missing. Clark and Carole Gable, who received such an ovation during their visit here, shared their companvisit here, shared their compan-ion's distress and voiced their sincere regrets over the loss.

Imagine Mildred's surprise when a dainty jewelry box was delivered to her residence the next day, bearing the signatures of the famous movie stars. Inside the package was a sparkling pair of rhinestone earrings, with a note inscribed:

"My dear Mildred, "We hope you like these, and perhaps they will take the place of the ones you lost. Our best to

"CAROLE AND CLARK GABLE." Complementing Mildred's black satin gown at the premiere were the gift earrings which will remind her in years to come of a pleasant friendship with two of the most popular stars of the

THOSE BELOVED Atlantans, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain, will observe the fiftieth anniversary of their life together in a quiet manner today at their home on North avenue. Though there will be no formal celebra-tion of the auspicious occasion, the couple will be surrounded by their children and grandchildren, who will assemble to congratulate them and wish them many happy returns of the day.

The former Miss Lettie McDon-ald became the bride of Dr. Brit-tain at a brilliant ceremony solemnized 50 years ago this eve-ning at the old Second Baptist church. The marriage service was read by the fathers of the happy couple, the late Dr. Henry Mc-Donald, who was pastor of the church at that time and the late Dr. J. M. Brittain, the ceremony being the last performed in the historic church.

Dr. and Mrs. Brittain's children are Mrs. Spann Milner, Mr. and Mrs. Marion L. Brittain Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. McDonald Brittain, their grandchildren including Spann Milner Jr. and Marion L. Brittain III. Betty Jane Warner, small daughter of Mrs. M. L. Brittain Jr., will complete the family

As president of Georgia Tech and a distinguished leader in educational circles, Dr. Brittain is one of Atlanta's most admire'd and valued citizens. Soft-voiced and pretty, Mrs. Brittain is no less an influence in cultural and social circles, and hosts of Atlantans ex-tend affectionate wishes today for their happiness and good health.

TIDBITS of humor and pathos are still circulating concerning Atlanta's recent "Gone With the Wind" celebration. Sally is informed that the quiet demeanor of one of the youngest members of society, little blue-eyed, threeyear-old Nancy Jane Johnson, was ruffled by the world premiere of Mitchell's famous novel.

The future deb approached a prominent matron in the midst of a recent conversation and asked in typical baby fashion: "Is dat wind done gone?'

Her listener, with a puzzled look inquired: "What wind?" To which the youthful Atlantan said: "Dat wind over Atlanta."

As her listener's glance grew more and more quizzical, Nancy Jane said: "I was scared dat wind was going to blow Santa Claus as "gigolos," and to these few will fall the duty of keeping "the light fantastic" in full sway.

WHEN Frances Tennent Ellis gave the luncheon yesterday for Jane Osbun, an antique silver Florentine grape dish beautified the table. The receptacle was purchased many years ago in one of the marvelous antique shops in Florence, Italy, and brought to Athens by the late Millie Rutherford.

When Frances became the bride of William D. Ellis III at a ceremony in Augusta, the grape dish was the gift of "Miss Millie," the listinguished aunt of the groom. Silver swans flanked the centerpiece, and all three containers held dark red chrysanthemums, white narcissi, snapdragons and roses of pinkish hue. Frances used her silver monogrammed cards to designate the guests' places at the luncheon given at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Love Makes Boy MY DAY: Blind to Girl's Faults

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: My husband and I have worked hard and made great plans to keep our only son in college. I'm afraid it is another case of "best Iaid plans." In his sophomore year he made a close friend of a boy whose family is not admirable and as might have been expected he spent many week-ends at this boy's home and fell in love with the sister. Son used to be a devoted child, respectful and appreciative of all his father and I

Now he is a changed creature. Sometimes I fear he hates me. He curses like a sailor and his disposition is ruined. I must attribute the change to this association with the college mate and his sister. But what on earth can parents do to save their child when he doesn't want to We have thought of cutting his if he marries the girl we will wash our hands of him. family is very poor and they might think they would feather their nest by marrying the girl to our boy.

A WORRIED MOTHER,

I suppose any steps parents may take to save their son from making an irrevocable mistake in his marriage are, in one sense, weaned from his parents by the drastic methods they employ, have they won? Generally speaking a threat on the part of a parent is admission of weakness which a child recognizes as such. Yet who can blame parents for making direct threats as last resort to save her son? We must feel a bit of sympathy for a lad who has fallen in love with a girl wholly unsuitable to be his wife. He's in a spot. He can't see her with his parent's eyes and when they criticise her and try to show him the light he feels the knife being drawn her and his family. But he's loveblind. Other wise ones say the parents should reason with boy, explaining to him that they have the right to expect him to finish his college course before he takes son has not already bowed his neck against parental advice and begun to bite and curse the hands

Perplexities on every hand, and I'm not sure of anything but this: Whatever parents do they shouldn't run the risk of weaning their child from them. Even if it comes to swallowing the bitter pill of an unacceptable than losing their boy.

Bestowing an Honor Long Overdue

HYDE PARK.—Yesterday I told you I would tell you a little more about the ceremony of presenting the congressional medal to Mrs. Margaret Livingston Chanler Aldrich. This very charming grey-haired women brought a photograph of herself in her nurse's uniform to show to the President and tald us at humbhon how to the President and tald us at hum dent and told us at luncheon how she happened to undertake this work, which so many years later has brought her the recognition of a congressional medal. Mrs. Aldrich heard that nurses were going to be needed in Puerto Rico and realized that an interpreter would be needed who could speak Spanish. She had learned Spanish, and therefore, volunteered to go as an interpreter, not as a nurse, but she spent two weeks in a New York city hospital so that she would know what a hospital regimen should be. The other woman, Anna Bouligny, from New Orleans, who was also awarded a medal posthumously, went to do the catering for the hospital. Mrs. Aldrich recalled that she would go to market every morning at 6 o'clock with the cook and the lists of diets necessary and get whatever was needed and then supervise the cooking and serving.

Mrs. Aldrich found herself not only interpreting, but at the head of 20-odd nurses in this hospital. She must have been terrified in-wardly, but knowing her as I do, I am sure she never showed it.

She said yesterday that all of her men got well. She knew that if they had died, she would never have had the courage to keep on. I feel sure, however, that whatever had to be done, she would have done. Mrs. Aldrich's son and daughter-in-law were with her yesterday. I am glad that she is still living to receive this honor so long overdue and I feel sure that her children will cherish it. In the afternoon I took a long walk in the woods and saw the landscape with the eyes of a California guest, who said to me yesterday morning that I could not imagine what bare trees against the sky and the snow on the ground meant to him, accustomed to the evergreen or brown landscape of California. He was astonished to find that the bare branches had beauty of design which made them just as interesting in a different way than they would be in summer when clothed with their foliage. I have always felt this way about the changing seasons. Each one has its own particular charm and I would regret being anywhere where I could not observe these changes and feel the difference in the air as they approached. This morning, I was delighted to read the story of Emma Bugbee in the New York Herald-Tribune about Miss Thompson. Of course, from my point of view, no one else could do the job for me which she does, but I think that everyone reading this article, who has aspirations to be a "perfect" secretary, will learn something of what

Cases of Nasal Allergy Seem To Increase By Dr. William Brady.

Dental practitioners have long used the term prophylaxis in a restricted sense, referring to the important feature in the preservation or conservation of the teeth, that is, periodic inspection, removal of stains or tartar deposits, scaling and polishing of the teeth to prevent caries or decay from getting a start in any minute fissure or crevice in the enamel, and also attention to the condition of the gums for the prevention of pyorrhea. All of which is absolutely indispensable if you want to keep your teeth—and who but a dimwit doesn't?—yet it is well to remember that prophylaxis has a wider meaning than that. It is the art of guarding against, preserving from or preventing dis-ease. Anything that contributes to the prevention of disease is a prophylactic remedy, precaution or measure, for instance adding vitamin D to the regular diet in in-fancy, childhood or youth to prevent rickets or keeping the skin between the toes dry to prevent ringworm, epidermophytosis, foot

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(P)— Twenty-sevon out of 81 of the untry's sports editors today put fingers on the steady growth

That swing was pretty much climaxed by the final capitulation of the New York Giants, whose conversion to this new variation on the national pastime is quite likely o carry the trend on into 1940 with renewed vigor. PRO GRID FEVER

Looking for other features which were typical of the fastending sports year, the editors found only one on which they were in fairly general agreement. Eighteen of them made increased interest in professional football their first choice. This was 1938's top trend, and its right to a prominent place in the 1939 picture was proved in financial figures, the best the game has had since the organization of the National League in 1921.

Beyond these two, it was pretty much of a case of "every man for nimself." Three ballots led off with a better distribution of power n college football, a nomination with which any number of coaches probably would be in full accord. Tennessee To Have Float at Pasadena

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 19. (AP)-Tennessee will be represented by a float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, University President James D. Hoskins said today.

"The university will provide the float to represent the state of Tennessee," he said. "The details have not been worked out, but it will be a credit to the people of Tennessee."

He said Governor Prentice Cooper had accepted his invita-tion to represent the university officially and socially at the Pasadena festivities, including the Rose Bowl football game be-tween Tennessee and Southern

But in rambling around the town one hears a lot of talk about the Crackers of 1940. Some of the dyedin-the-sun followers are particularly anxious to know what moves are going to be made to replace John Rucker, Al Rubelin and Clyde Smoll.

Looks like right now that the Crackers are going to start a season without a single left-handed pitcher. They did that back in 1935-not only started but finished without a left-hander-and won their first pennant in 10 years.

The Crackers have made an effort to obtain an outstanding southpaw, but they are, as President Earl Mann says, scarce January 1. as eagles on the Ingleside golf course.

Bob Chipman, bright young prospect who played with Greenwood; Elwood Lawson, who was with Waycross, and Charley Burgess, who made quite a name at Savannah, will be brought in and given every chance, but if they don't make it, the Crackers will cast their lot with right-handers. One more "A" pitcher is a certainty.

The Crackers also will land a center fielder and a second baseman.' President Mann is hopeful that Old Kris Kringle can fill the bill. He already has written the old gentleman with the whiskers a stirring letter.

It is easy to understand how one player might not Brekke. get national recognition, but in the south there was no better man at his various positions than Neil Cavette. His coaches readily will agree to that.

First of all, there were few better guards and, as a line backer, he ranked rather high. Cavette's kicking—he drops back to do most of Tech's kicking, of course-for the second straight year was most valuable.

Then, most amazing of all, he cleverly took a part in the execution of many of Tech's tricks back of the line. He was clever in faking kicks and either handing the ball off or occasionally throwing a pass.

What else a guard needs to do to get all-southern recognition, I do not know. Maybe he should have run with the ball some or gone out to catch passes. Or, perhaps, he should have sports; a swing away from spec- done the team's laundry. He did about everything else.

CAPTAIN MURPHY, TOO

It got so during the season that writers put special men to Atlanta early Sunday morning, work watching to see just how many tackles Captain Buck Murphy made back of the line.

And they discovered he invariably made more than his share of tackles. Unfortunately, no one made an effort to determine how many blocks he made per game. That would have been interesting, too.

But rarely did Buck carry the ball. When he did he usually was good for a yard or two or three. Buck never got a tumble from the pickers, however.

Just doesn't seem right that boys so valuable to a team, as Murphy and Cavette, shouldn't get the proper recognition. They do get it from coaches and team-mates, but others are prone to string along with flashy performers who may, in the final analysis, not prove nearly so valuable as regards team per-

Three coaches, Alexander, Bobby Dodd, and Mack Tharpe, two managers, Dan MacIntyre and I. M. Massey, Trainer Claude Bond and his assistants, Porto and Buryesterday. Pass defense, proving coaches' respect for Slingin' Paul Christman, was stressed in a dummy scrimmage. Varsity backs worked at length against aerials thrown at them by the Red Devils and improvement was noted.

Scrimmages Saturday and Monday proved the Techs' weakness on pass defense and much work is being done in this department. Vols To Wait for Rose Bowl Game To Test Cafego's Knee Halfback Looks Better in Workout, But Needs More Rest.

By DON WHITEHEAD. KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 19 .-

What Stocks Did. Tues 198 397 223 810 818 NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—An rally of their own in today's stock market while leaders bogged down under further year-end tax selling. Early efforts at recovery by most pivotal issues were unsuccessful and, aside from scattered favorites, the direction was moderately lower to the end.

Aiding sentiment were optimistic forecasts by the Federal Reserve Board and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The lat-ter felt consumer demand would carry well into 1940 and thought any slackening after the turn of the year would not fall into a prolonged recession.

Trimmed fractionally in the curb were Jones & Laughlin, International Petroleum, American Cyanamid "B," Lake Shore and Pioneer Gold. Turnover of 193,-000 shares compared with 157,000 Monday.
